He said he desired to know how far English commerce was protected in the event of war.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt said the remarks of Sir J. Colombe were similar to the notes of alarm, which naval exerts were accustomed to issue to induce pents were accusioned to issue to make the nation to believe that the haval expenditures, enormous as they were, would be inade juste in the event of war. By the declination of Paris the trade of a belligerent would be perfectly safe; for it could come in under a neutral flag.

Lord George Hamilton, of the admiralty did not agree with Mr. Harcourt's views. How, he asked, could England's vast tomage be suddenly transferred to a neutral tag? What it wheatshould be declared contraband of war? English ship owners were unwise to trust so much to the declaration of Paris. England must have a navy over the world. "I have been subject to severe aprils of Congestion of the Liver, and have been in the habit of taking from 15 to 20 grains of calonel, which generally laid me up for three or four days. Lately I have been taking Simmons Liver Regulator which gave me relief, without any interruption to basiness." J. Hross, Middlepott, Chio. J. H. ZEILLY & CO.,

CRIMINA CLOVER tim water and Carrall not three. It is useful in mixture for dry soil.

12:11 71 11 5 .~.

Red clover is a perennial but of very few years' duration. It is nutritious and volable in moist locations. The large! relor pea vine clover, also known as Englisheavy grass, is a reliable sort for plowing under. White clover is especrains prized for lawns and pastures. Crims a clover, a sketch of which is here reproduced from James M. Thorburn & Co.'s annual descriptive catalogue for 1591, is an annual with crimson flowers, about which many reports were m., le last season, some exceedingly commen latery, while others were not favorable. Thorburn says that "sown late in the summer it futuishes an early green folder the following season; it is also excellent for soiling." Beal says, "It belongs to a warm climate, and is not so popular at the north as is red clover."

Japan clover is a perennial, voluble only in southern localities, where it thrives in any soil. It makes a fair hay, and stock eat it readily when green.

Potato Experiments.

Of 122 variaties and seedlings of the not ito teste I the past season at the Wisconsin station, the following ten were most productive, yielding in the order named: Seedling from C. E. Augell. Hose Beauty, Monarch, Duplex, Late Boanty of Hibron, Mullaly, Alexander's Prohile, Sea, on Red Jacket, White Beauty of Hebron and Wisconsin Beauty. Placed in the order of their table quality, tuese varaties would rank as follows: Alexander's Problet. White Beauty of Mem.rch. Wisconsin Beauty, Seneca Red Jacket, Ros. Beauty, Mullaly, seeding from C. E. Angell. Both with cuttings and whele tubers, the largest merchantable yield cam: from the heaviest seeding, though the increase of merchantable yield was by no means in proportion to the increase of seed. The proportion of small potato, sincreased with the increase of seed. The smaller whole potatoes gave inferior results to the smaller cuttings. Two single eyes in a hill yielded decidedly more than one, without a corresponding merease in small potatoes. No loss ra yield followed planting in hills as comrared with drills. The results were clearly opposed to cutting off the "seed end" of the poteto betwee planting. No advanland plaster actors planting.

A Word About Timothy Seed.

Fr in cureful germination tests made by Plot sor G. The Farm and Fireside. Fig. 1 shows a house in which the roof and sides are combined. It may be to and his purils, taking perhaps little or feet square, 9 feet at the peak, with a bourd at the bottom I foot high, or it may be of any size desired. The cost for material is about $15, the floor being of earth. It is not so convenient for one entering it as is the house shown at Fig. 2, but this house gives more room on the ground, at less cost. Windows should be at both ends, and the roosts may be short, so as not to interfere with ingress and egress of the attendant.

Fig. 1 shows a double house. This house is 19 by 10 feet, divided into two apartments, each 8 by 40 feet, and will cost about $15. Each apartment will accommodate about ten or twelve fowls. and one ventilator (A) will answer for both. There are two entrances to and from the interior, one at each end (B) and a wire or lath partition, with a door

Top Dressing Grass Lands.

A trial was made of spreading nanure upon the ground late in the fall, also of leaving it in small heaps on the land in the fall and spreading it early in the spring. A third trial was made of hauling the manure and spreading the last of April just before the crass started. The manure was spread as evenly as possible and bash harrowed. The best result was from the land on which the manure was suread the last of April. The poorest result was from the manure left in heaps over winter and spread in

Not realizing satisfactory returns from either of these experiments, a portion of Herron, Late Beauty of Hebron, Duplez, my land was planted two years to fodder corn. The spring following the same quantity of manure as used in top dress ing was spread and plowed under and the land laid down to grass. With the grass seed was cown a surficient quantity of oats to smother the weeds the first season. The result was that the crop of oats and grass the first year was of more value than the best crop of grass realized from top dressing. It continued to be of much better quality and quantity in the four succeeding years.

Another experiment for producing grass was made upon land broken up in August. The manure was spread upon the sod, thoroughly harrowed under and the land laid down to grass. The result of this experiment was fully as satisfactage fellowed grass as the cuttings with tory in quantity and quality of grass as from the land planted two years to fodder corn and then laid down to grass. Much has been said and written about how you should sit on the horse." Perhaps you have been told to grasp the saddle or the horse firmly with thighs or knees, to have your toes higher than your heels, to keep the heels away from the horse, to bend your back to be springy or to straighten yourself to sit firmly, etc. Perhaps your teacher has made great efforts and exhausted all re--ources of his knowledge to impress uron you how you should sit, and yet ar a trot you lose the stirrups, you lose your balance, and unless trotting very slowly, and unless your horse has an easy trot, you have to bring him to a

WHERE THE TROUBLE LIFS. Examine your saddle; it seems nice, soft and comfortable: the stirrups as beavy as should be—even their tread covered with leather or rubber to prevent slipping from your foot; but slip they will. Why? Look at the shape of your saddle, at the positions which the saddler has assigned for your seat, thighs, knees and feet, and see where he has attached the bars for the stirrup leathers on the saddle tree Your saddle is perhaps too iong and, as most English style saddles, flar; its lowest point, instead as near as possible to the center, is back toward the end, you are almost sitting on the cantle. in order to bring your knees to the knee buffs, which are too far front, von have to stretch your legs forward. This obliges, you to carry your stirrips forward with your feet away from and in front of the place where they would hang by their own weight, and in order to teen them at your feet you have to shorten the stirrup leathers and bear heavily on the stirrups, otherwise they will slip back. What is the result? As soon as your foot loses the surrup the latter, according to the law of gravity, it is no to the towest position which the length of stirrup leather allows far behind your foot; then your foot, too, having lost its support, and with nothing to bear against together with your leg, according to the law of gravity, tries to slip back in order to hang as near as possible to the center far back the knee puils, perhaps on the

An Estimate of Carlyle.

"I never knew Carlyle," says the auther of "Glances of Great and Little Men," "except by sight. To tell the truth, I did not greatly covet his acquaintance in those last days of his, when alone I could have known him. I was even not without a certain dread down the stars again of this roaring apostle of taciturnity. Mary Jane" he called out. "Where are of this roaring apostle of taciturnity. Once, however, finding myself sitting opposite to him in a Chelsea omnibus. I ventured to address him. I tried the weather—the recognized conversational aperient—but in this case it failed of its usual effect. Speaking of people who paint, Edward W. Kemble, the artist, said: "I know many actors who are artists with the brush and pencil, and very fair artists at that. ## Work in Lecturing. A popular lecturer who has appeared before big audiences on hundreds of platforms during the past ten or twelve years, says that lecturing is the hardest way of earning a living. The lecturer is all the time exhausted with travel from place to place by railroad or steamboat. or stage coach or other conveyance. He cannot get solid sleep any time. He finds himself in uncomfortable quarters in all sorts of hotels. He cannot get to bed till nearly midnight after any lect ure. He is bothered with committees of gravity, and then your legs will hang and agents. He often finds that both the audience and the receipts are light. The bare horse almost behind the saddle lecturer here quoted says that he is wort out down to the bones after a few weeks To avoid this by muscular exertion of lecturing, and that he never had as you try to force your legs up and front exhausting work when he was a deck into a position very tiresome to main- hand abourd ship as he has had during

Resistance of the Air to a Locomotive. Experiments on the French railways show that the resistance of the atmos where they will stay by their own weight phere to the motion of highspeed trains amounts often to half the total resistance. Two engines, of which the resistance was measured separately and found to be 19.8 pounds per ton at thirty-seven miles per hour, were coupled together and again tried. The resistance fell to 14.3 pounds per ton. The second engine was masked by the first. It may be ar gued from this that by a suitable adap tation of the front of a locomotive, electrical or otherwise, a saving of from 8 to 10 per cent. of the effective power could
